EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

The Penalty of Iniquity.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—A joint indictment found against Jacob Rehm, A. C. Hesing and I. P. Hoyt charges that in February, 1874, these three men conspired together with George Miller, Henry C. Fredericks, Joseph Roelle, Henry B. Miller, Frederick L. Reed, Wm. Cooper, Roswell C. Meireau, E. J. Lawrence, John Robinson, J. M. Ballentine, J. I. Palmer, D. G. Rush, O. B. Dickinson, J. Aber, E. C. Leach, G. Burroughs, A. S. Powell, R. R. Mason, [illegible], F. A. Eastman, Adolph Mueller, Jas. Miller, T. Gauckel, G. F. Robinson, A. Waterman, J. Hawthorne, L. Matern, Chas. L. Vergho and others to defraud the United States of the internal revenue tax of seventy cents then imposed upon each proof gallon of 1,000,000 gallons of distilled spirits produced by the several distilleries operated by the above named parties.

Jacob Rehm is charged specifically with having given notice to the Lake Shore distillery company [illegible] and to the works of Gibson G. Russell on July 1, 1874, that the Government officials were about to visit their distilleries for the purpose of inspecting them and that by this act the United States officers were prevented from ascertaining whether they unlawfully operated. The second count is to the effect that the same parties united in removing 100,000 proof gallons and defrauding the Government of the tax of ninety cents on each gallon. The indictment against I. P. Hoyt charges him with having conspired with Rehm and Junker to defraud the Government of the tax on [illegible] gallons of spirits. A. C. Hesing is indicted for conspiring with Geo. Miller, H. [illegible], Jos. Roelle and A. Junker to defraud the Government of the tax of 70 cents on each gallon of a large quantity of spirits amounting in the aggregate to 1,000,000 gallons. The bail of Rehm is fixed at $20,000 on one indictment against him, that of Hesing was fixed at the same. On representation from counsel it was urged that the [illegible], since the distillers, who pleaded guilty of crimes with which Hesing and [illegible] were merely accused were in no case put under larger bonds than $10,000. Prosecuting Attorney [illegible] stated that the crimes were merely stated in the indictments; that they were the most serious ever laid at the door of any one since he had been connected with the service. For a period of [illegible] years these men had been charged [illegible] stealing money from the government and putting it in their pockets. The evidence is sufficient to send them to the penitentiary for the rest of their natural lives, if justice be meted out in full measure. The bail of Hoyt was reduced from $50,000 to [illegible]. All the indicted men gave bail and were [illegible].

Billiard Contest—Sexton Wins.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—A billiard match, three ball game, 600 points, for $500 a side, between Slosson and Sexton resulted as follows: Sexton, 600; Slosson, [illegible]. Winner's average, "15 15 39." Sexton's highest run, 73; Slosson's, 110.

Treasurer Defaulted.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 27.—Jonathan Earle, treasurer of the Norfolk & New Brunswick Hosiery Company, is a defaulter to the amount of $142,000. He has turned over property and stock sufficient to cover his defalcation; but the securities are not available at present. It appears that his son, [illegible], of New York, kept his bank accounts, and was given blank checks signed by Earle as [illegible], to fill out when required, to meet the liabilities of the company, and that in using the blank checks signed at command, he overdrawn the account to the amount stated. [illegible] Earle speculated in Wall street.

[illegible] Telegraph Stockholders' Meeting.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Stockholders of the Inter-[illegible] Ocean Telegraph Co., president Orton in the chair, to-day considered plans for an equitable basis for consolidation of the preferred and common stock, and referred the subject to the directors, with power to carry out the plan which [illegible] the retirement of preferred stock and the issue in lieu thereof of three shares of common for every two shares of preferred, no stock to be issued until 90 per cent. of the stockholders have given their consent in writing.

The Attempted Safe Robbery.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The plot to rifle the safes of [illegible] Express Company, has just been made public. Samuel Gaunt, a discharged employe, recently told private detectives that Francis E. McMahon, also discharged from the service of the company, had called on him, and exhibiting [illegible] keys made from wax impressions, that McMahon had taken off the locks on the safes, known as Pittsburg and New York safes, proposed the two should enter the building and rifle the safes. When McMahon was made aware that the company and the authorities knew of the intended robbery, he entered into negotiations with Jno. Hoey, through [illegible] Kintsing, offering to surrender the keys if not prosecuted. Hoey would only agree that if McMahon would surrender him[self] with the keys, and tell all he knows about the [illegible] from safes of the company, and furnish [illegible] of his accomplices, including the name [illegible] of the manufacturer of the keys, and all [illegible] is within his knowledge, he would not be very rigorously prosecuted. McMahon would not [illegible] to this, and negotiations were broken off and he fled the city.

The McKee Trial.

The [illegible] St. Louis special says a single day has [illegible] all of McKee's evidence in denial of his connection with the whisky ring. This defense had [illegible] all that was expected; it was thought more suspicious circumstances would be explained away. The result shows that McKee's counsel rely on their powers of argument before the jury and the instructions of the court. Voorhees, McKee's leading counsel, said, just before leaving the court-room to-night, "The case looks even better than I had hoped." While the direct evidence for McKee was not especially noticeable, his counsel, [illegible] the matter from a legal standpoint, think they have made a strong point in setting government witnesses against each other and involving them in contradiction. A large number of witnesses were introduced to swear to McKee's good character, among them were Judge Knight of the St. Louis circuit, ex Gov. Thurston Polk, T. Reynolds, B. Gratz Brown, Judge John F. Long (surveyor of the port), ex-Mayor Jos. Brown, Mayor [illegible], Wayman Crow, Wm. H. Benton, Judge [illegible] (Supreme Court), Judge Warner of the probate court, and Sheriff Thos. A. Rather. [illegible] spoke of the attempt of the conspirators to [illegible] down and throw in the shade the ven[illegible] of their own crimes. Fisher's statement that he saw four hundred and eighty dollars paid [illegible] was pronounced a base falsehood; and the [illegible] of the circumstances and [illegible] was pointed out from the facts of the [illegible] of these men and their acquaintances. [illegible] view with McKee at the Globe office was admitted as a fact, but Engelke's version of the [illegible] matter was declared wholly false, on the [illegible] of Bohle, Maguire and Hardaway, [illegible] went to prove that Engelke visited McKee to secure his influence with the collector for the release of liquors seized in Colorado, and not for the purpose of preventing the exposure of the ring.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 28.—At the McKee trial, District Attorney Dyer followed Col. Hatch, and made a general review of the theory brought out in the trial and said the government was obliged to introduce confessed conspirators in order to unfold the [illegible] upon the revenue, and he claimed their testimony left no doubt of guilt of those [illegible] whom they testified. He showed the relations of McKee and McDonald and Joyce, who had already been convicted, and how essential it was to have him in the ring that he might throw his great influence to protect them from the powers at Washington. The counsel analyzed all the testimony and [illegible] that the prosecution had clearly proved the existence of a conspiracy and McKee's connection with it.

More Crooked Whisky Indictments.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—This afternoon the grand jury of the U. S. court came into the court room and presented a new batch of indictments. They said in answer to the inquiry of Judge Blodgett, that they had finished business and then retired to their rooms. The indictments are four in number; one of them against H. B. ("Buffalo") Miller and Fred [illegible], his son in law, another against [illegible] Powell, James Haas and Thomas F. Bailey, another against Orlando B. Dickinson, Jonathan Abel and George T. Burroughs; the 4th against Ed. [illegible], Jas. M. Ballantine and John Robinson. Each of the indictments contains several counts. They are all substantially alike in their averments. They charge the defendants named with having, [illegible] 1874 and 1875, removed large quantities of distilled liquors from their distilleries to some place to the jurors unknown without having paid the U. S. tax thereon. The number of gallons is specified in the different counts, and runs all the way from 5,000 to 200,000 gallons. There are also charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States of its revenue with certain parties named, being, for the most part persons who have already pleaded guilty. Judge Blodgett fixed the amount of bail to be required of each of those defendants at [illegible].

Loss by the Northampton Robbery Exceeds $1,000,000.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—It is now believed that the loss by the robbery of the Northampton National Bank will exceed $1,000,000, and a very large amount, perhaps one half of the stolen securities are negotiable. It has been ascertained that the burglars rode from Springfield to Northampton Tuesday night, with a fast team engaged at Burns livery stable about two weeks previously by a man who said they wanted to go to a surprise party at Holyoke. When the team was returned on Wednesday morning, the horses showed signs of hard driving and were very much exhausted. The hostler gives a very clear description of the man who hired and returned the team, and it is surmised that he was the manager of the robbery. The detectives are hard at work and have information not yet made public, which may be of great importance.

Secret Meeting of Members of Wisconsin Legislature.

Effort to Have Winslow Sent Back.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—The authorities of Massachusetts have telegraphed to representatives Harris and Pierce, at Washington, asking them to use their influence with the minister from Holland to induce his government to deliver to our government the body of Winslow, the fugitive forger.

An informal meeting of Winslow's creditors will be held at the Daily Press office on Monday next. It is stated that the skillful forgeries indicate Winslow had a confederate, as he was not an expert penman.

Northampton Bank Robbery.

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 28.—It is now believed that the whole amount of losses by the Northampton bank robbery is over one million dollars, nearly half of which is negotiable.

Meeting of the Stockholders of the Boston Post Company.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Boston Post Company, to-day, it was resolved there should be no interruption of the publication of the paper or other business of the company. The largest holders of stock are determined that the interest of property shall not be jeopardized in the least.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.

The President pro tem. laid before the Senate the House bill fixing the rate of postage on third class mail matter, which was read by title.

Morrill, from the committee on appropriations, reported without amendment the House bill relating to the centennial celebration of American independence, and recommended its passage, placed on the calendar. He gave notice he would call it up for action on Monday.

Hitchcock presented a memorial of the legislative assembly of New Mexico asking for the passage of an act to admit that Territory into the Union as a State on an equal footing with other States, referred.

The Senate committee on privileges and elections decided to report back to the Senate the papers purporting to be the credentials of election of J. B. Eustis as senator from Louisiana, with a recommendation that they lie on the table without further action, because they find that at the time of his alleged election there was no vacancy. This report was determined on by the vote of Morton.

Logan introduced a bill to establish a mint for the coinage of gold and silver at Chicago, referred.

Booth presented a resolution of the California Legislature asking an appropriation for the construction of a breakwater at San Luis Obispo, in that state, and declaring the harbor at that place a port of entry, referred to the committee on commerce.

Morton, from the committee on privileges and elections, reported back the papers relating to the claim of J. B. Eustis for U. S. Senator from Louisiana, with a written report declaring that in the opinion of the committee, there is no vacancy in the Senate, B. P. B. Pinchback having been elected U. S. Senator for the term commencing March 4, 1873. He recommended that the papers be laid on the table and printed; so ordered.

Saulsbury said as a member of the committee on privileges and elections, he dissented from the conclusion of the majority. In his judgment there was a vacancy existing at the time of the election of Eustis, and his credentials, although irregular in form, were all that was necessary to entitle him to this seat, and at the proper time he, (Saulsbury) would state the grounds of his dissent.

Merrimon, member of the committee, also dissented, and said he had given his reasons already at considerable length.

Morton gave notice that on Wednesday of next week he would ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the Louisiana Senatorial case. He thought it should be settled one way or another.

The Chair stated Wednesday had been set as the day to pay tribute to the memory of the late Senator from Connecticut (Ferry).

Morton then said he would call the Louisiana case up on the following day.

Howe said he was glad to hear his friend Morton give the notice, as it really seemed to him (Howe) that this question was one of the highest privilege. It not only affected the right of a man to a seat, but it affected the right of a State to representation on this floor. The Senate should either fill the vacancy, or refuse to do so, and let the people of Louisiana send some one else here.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA 3 65 BONDS.

After the expiration of the morning hour consideration was resumed of the bill to pay interest on the 3 65 District of Columbia bonds.

Allison submitted an amendment providing that any issue of said bonds beyond the sum of $15,000,000 is hereby prohibited.

Sargent said he did not think the amendment of his friend from Iowa went far enough. He, therefore, submitted the following as a substitute for that amendment, which provided that the certificates heretofore issued by the boards of audit, including those converted into 3 65 bonds and those which have not been so converted and certificates hereafter issued by the board of audit or their successors in office shall not exceed in the aggregate the sum of $15,000,000.

Allison said the amendment of Sargent might be added to that submitted.

Hamilton of Texas, inquired if the Senator from California (Sargent) thought his amendment would stop the issue of 3 65 bonds. As long as Congress recognized these bonds, the issue of them would be continued. He would undertake to say that the issue would go on until the amount reached $5,000,000 unless Congress stopped it.

Sargent said the object of his amendment was to cut off the power of the commissioners to issue more bonds.

Thurman alluded to the bill to provide a government for the district, submitted at the last session by Morrill, of Maine, and said the Senator from Indiana (Morton) found something in it against color or previous condition of servitude and he thundered away at it. The Senator from Delaware, (Bayard) found something in it about the liquor business, which aroused him.

Morton—That was against the Democratic party.

Thurman—Yes, it was entirely too moral.

Resuming his argument, Thurman spoke of the estimate to complete the work submitted by Gov. Sheppard, and said they were made after the work had been ordered and contracts awarded, and there was no excuse whatever for an under estimate. He read from the guarantee clause of the section authorizing the issue of 3 65 bonds and said it was a qualified guarantee. The pledge was that Congress would levy taxes to pay the portion of the bonds which should be paid by the people of the district, and the portion to be paid by the general government should be paid out of the national treasury. He argued that Congress should pay a portion of the expenses of the district, but that portion never had been determined. Congress had neglected that duty. The first thing which Congress ought to do, should be to declare what portion of the interest and principal of those should be paid out of the national treasury, and the balance could be collected from the people of the district. In conclusion he said he preferred the resolution as it came from the House of Representatives, and was opposed to the amendments proposed by the Senate committee on appropriations striking out the proviso prohibiting any further issue of 3 65 bonds, and that nothing in the resolution shall involve the government of the United States in any obligation to pay the principal or interest of such bonds which have been issued contrary to or not in pursuance of law.

Sargent submitted an addition to the amendment presented by him so as to provide that when the limit in the issue of said bonds shall be reached the board of audit of the district shall be abolished and all papers in their possession turned over to the district commissioners.

Pending the discussion Bogy presented the memorial of G. C. Bingham, Adjutant General of Missouri, asking the passage of a law authorizing the examination, allowance and payment of claims of that State against the general government for supplies furnished the U. S. troops during the late war, referred to committee on military affairs.

A message was received from the House of Representatives announcing the death of Mr. Starkweather and the action of the House thereon. The Senate, as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, adjourned until Monday.

House.

The Speaker announced the following select committee on the real estate pool and Jay Cooke indebtedness: Glover, New, Lewis, Pratt and Smith of Pennsylvania.

Elkins, of New Mexico presented a memorial of the territorial legislature for an enabling act and the admission of New Mexico as a State, referred.

[illegible] asked leave to offer a resolution declaring that the people of the United States constitute a nation to the extent and for the purposes defined in the Federal Constitution; that rights and powers of the United States Government are defined and limited by the Federal Constitution and cannot be enlarged or diminished except by amendments to the Constitution, etc.

Hamilton and others objected.

On motion of Whitthorne, chairman of the committee on naval affairs a select committee consisting of Whitthorn, Willis and Danford was authorized to take testimony at Norfolk in regard to the alleged abuses and frauds at that navy yard.

Singleton, from the committee on appropriations, reported the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill, which was made the special order for Wednesday next. It appropriates $923,847 and fixes the pay of ministers to Great Britain, France, Germany and Russia, at $14,000 each; to Spain, Austria, Brazil, Mexico and Japan, $10,000; to Italy $8,000; to Portugal, Switzerland, Belgium, Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden and Norway, Turkey, Venezuela and Hawaiian Islands, $6,000 each; to Chile and Bolivia (one mission), $8,500; to Peru, Ecuador and Colombia (one mission), $6,500; to the Argentine Republic, Paraguay and Uruguay (one mission), $6,500; to Guatemala, Costa Rica, Honduras, Salvador and Nicaragua (one mission), $10,000, and to Liberia, $4,000. The report accompanying the bill is prefaced by extracts from the enactment upon which the service stands, embracing some of the sources of information the committee had before them in their exhaustive research in studies of South American countries, in which the reduction of representation is principally made. These data consist principally of tables, showing the commerce extent and population at different periods since these countries have established an independent form of government.

Springer introduced bills to prohibit American citizens from holding slaves in foreign countries and to regulate elections in Utah Territory.

Hunton, from the committee on Revolutionary pensions reported a bill to amend the act of the 14th February, 1871, pensioning soldiers of the war of 1812, and to restore to the pension rolls those persons whose names were stricken therefrom in consequence of disloyalty. He moved to have the bill put upon its passage.

Conger made the point that it must first be considered in committee of the whole.

The point of order was sustained and the bill was so referred.

WEST POINT MILITARY ACADEMY.

The House then went into committee of the whole, Haskins in the chair, on the Military Academy appropriation bill.

The clerk proceeded to read the bill by sections, for amendment.

Hamilton, of New Jersey, moved to amend the clause for the pay of the cadets, by striking out the words, "at $450 each, in addition to rations," and substituting the words "at $540."

Hale moved to amend by striking out $540 and substituting $600. In support of his amendment, Hale said he deprecated anything which should be looked upon as an attack on this institution. He deprecated anything which should be considered as a first step in the direction of attack on the military establishments. The country was in no danger of a large standing army that should oppress the people and burden it and eat up its revenues. The military organization had been reduced, and was to-day only what was needed for frontier purposes. If this was the first step in the direction of attack on that establishment, he warned the gentlemen on the other side that the country would not sustain them in such a movement.

Randall, chairman of the committee on appropriations opposed Hale's amendment, and said the fact was that none of the money went into the pockets of the cadets, but was an appropriation made for their support, and it was believed that $540 was sufficient for that purpose. Any report to show that the committee was cutting down, in any degree any of the comforts or requirements of the cadets was a mistake. It was true there was a bill presented by which the question of economy came up, but no gentleman knew better than the gentleman from Maine (Hale) that the committee had decided on a uniform reduction through all departments. That reduction which was to be 10 per cent. was to be further carried out by reducing the number of employes 20 per cent., and by increasing the hours of service from six to eight hours.

Hale asked Randall whether he did not propose to make any exceptions to that rule.

Randall replied that as there were exceptions to all rules so the committee had made important exceptions to this rule. It had excepted for instance the Vice President and Librarian of Congress and they should continue to make exceptions in cases of meritorious and useful officers of government. But the policy of the gentleman from Maine (Hale) seemed to indicate a determined purpose on the part of the other side of the House to obstruct the committee in its economical reform movement. He hoped the members on his side of the House would march forward to the support of the committee on appropriations, for he declared to the House and to the people that in no particular did that committee mean to do injustice in the least degree.

Durham spoke against the reduction of the pay of cadets, and said he was in favor of legitimate reductions, but would not be led into reduction by any party or leaders of party.

The question was taken on Hale's amendment and it was rejected—68 to 96.

Cox complained that the members of the Republican side of the House were obstructionists to reform. They had commenced by opposing reform on the West Point bill,—where would they end? They would oppose reform on the navy bill, on the army bill, on the consular and diplomatic bill and on the civil service bill. Where was reform to be begun if not here on this particularly prodigal and luxurious system at West Point? There was no other place where they could begin so well. He had here an order from Gen. Townsend, signed by order of the Secretary of War, in which he read that no officer either active or retired, shall directly or indirectly, without being called upon by proper authority, suggest, or recommend any action to any member of Congress on a question of military business. He inferred that the gentlemen from Maine and Illinois (Hale and Hurlbut) had had advantage of some suggestions from officers, from professors at West Point, or, perhaps, from Gen. Townsend. This very curious order of Gen. Townsend contains also this sentence: "The foregoing is not intended to prevent officers from illustrating measures before Congress which have received the sanction or favor of the President, Secretary of War, or the General of the Army." Now, Mr. Chairman, I ask simply to have this paper put on record,—alluding to Gen. Townsend's order—so that members can see whence the information comes by which gentlemen on the other side of the House oppose economy.

Hale said: I do not propose to take any lessons in economy from the gentlemen from New York. I have had some experience in this House in attempting to reduce the expenditures of the Government. The committee on appropriations, in past years, has gone through a great work in that direction. Neither I nor the chairman, nor any member of that committee, nor any member of this side of the House, has ever received any assistance in that work from the gentleman from New York (Cox), yet he stands here to-day and points to us, and to me, as standing in the way of the reduction in the expenditures of the Government and he arrogates to himself, and to his party, the credit of first seeking to lessen the burdens of the people. Mr. Chairman, that gentleman knows that we are, to-day, two months advanced in this session. He knows that the main time of the session has been taken up in the introduction of bills by himself and his friends on the other side of the House, making fresh demands upon the treasury. He knows these claims are coming up from the South in demands running from $10 to $60,000,000, and that they aggregate ten times as much as the Republican party has saved heretofore. He knows that there is not a man in the South who lost a mule through the advances of the Federal army that is not coming up here and clamoring for pay from the United States. He knows there is a claim here for $60,000,000 to pay the cotton tax. The point of all that I am saying is, that when these claims come up and are pushed from that side of the House, he will not dare to vote against them.

Cox—I have voted against them.

Hale—I will submit to the record when it comes up. I do not care what the gentleman has done in the past term. I know now that he is drawn along in the current which he cannot resist and that when those claims come up and the word is said to him by his masters, he will not dare to vote against them, and that these claims will be sustained, with some exceptions it may be, on that side of the house and I say now, that I do not believe that he (Cox) will be an exception.

Cox in reply to Hale said the gentleman cannot find anything wrong in my record or votes either for retrenchment or prodigality to justify him in saying I have any masters, except the people, my constituents. What did he mean by "my masters"? On what meat doth this our Cæsar feed, that he is grown so great as to talk in that way to me?

Hale—Does the gentleman want me to answer?

Cox—Yes and promptly.

Hale—I mean the leading, dominating influence of the party of which the gentleman is an active and honored member—influences which he will be bound to follow, so far as I may say so without being offensive—to obey.

Cox—That belongs to the future. The gentleman (Hale) has been known in the last three or four Congresses as Blaine's little cub.

Garfield rose to a point of order but Hale got, in an uproar and confusion, his retort in these words: I will put myself against the buzzing fly that was shooed out of reputation and fame by the late member from Massachusetts (Butler).

Garfield again called the gentleman to order and Cox asked him in a tone of injured innocence: Why did you allow him to put me in that predicament?

Hale (defiantly)—I do not call the gentleman to order. I hope he will be allowed to go on and I trust I shall be allowed to explain.

Garfield—I call the gentleman (Cox) to order and I insist on the words being taken down—alluding to Hale as "Blaine's little cub."

Cox (in a pacific mood)—I withdraw them. It is not worth while to take them down.

Hale (in a belligerent mood)—I am willing to put [illegible] against them. That is a small business. It is only capping an old joke.

The chairman inquired from Garfield whether he withdrew his call for offensive words to be reduced to writing.

Garfield said he would not insist on it.

Cox—I was only provoked into using the only the very unparliamentary language of my friend from Maine. He had no right to attribute to me any servility. I never obeyed the behests of southern men. All through the war I stood by my country. He had no right to indulge in that. I never voted for southern claims. I did not vote either for the Centennial bill. Did the gentleman vote for it?

Hale—I did.

Cox (triumphantly)—You voted for it this session but last year you voted against it and gave good reasons for it too.

Hale rose to make a remark.

Cox—You sit down, if you please.

Hale—I have good reasons for both votes.

Cox—Now keep courteous.

The chairman interrupted the proceedings and said: The Chair feels it his duty to say emphatically that in a dignified House, as this ought to be, this constant clapping of hands and cheering is unbecoming and the Chair will appeal to the good sense and judgment and common civility and decency of members of the body in asking them to refrain from it, and he will say to the people occupying seats in the galleries that if they attempt it, the Chair will at once order the galleries to be cleared. The Chair cannot maintain order on the floor of the House unless every member observes the dignity and courtesy appropriate to the House of Representatives.

Cox said he entirely approved of the Speaker's ruling and continued his remarks. He said when the Democratic side of the House, after a hard old struggle to get into power—after scoundrelism, after swindling, after prodigality of many years, never straight but always crooked on your side of the House (Republican), and on the part of the administration—comes in here with one little bill for West Point, not seeking to reduce expenditures beyond what they were in 1867, it is opposed by the Republican economists, eating their own words and going back on their own record. In the name of the people, who are distressed, in the name of honest men everywhere, I protest. In one word against the whole body of that side of the House as wanting in fair, square economy. All your platforms favor retrenchment and the people cry for it everywhere, and yet on the very first opportunity, when there is an honest bill brought in, which cuts down luxurious living at West Point, the whole body of Republicans fly in the face of their own platform and of their previous record.

Conger and Garfield opposed the reductions, and Lamar favored them.

Hale defended himself from the charge of inconsistency brought against him for voting against the Centennial bill last Congress and for it this Congress. The reason for his voting against it last Congress was that the bill then would have committed the government to the whole cost of the Exposition. He had never had an unpleasant personal controversy with any member, but when in the midst of a discussion that was not personal, but might, be called animated there was language used which should only be heard in low places, and where such language was hurled at him he was so vain he was apt to retort, as he had done a few minutes ago, in language equally unparliamentary, for which he should probably, as he did now, in the presence of the House, apologize.

Cox—The gentleman from Maine began these personal remarks by remarking that there were masters over me.

Finally the discussion closed, and the committee proceeded to vote on the amendments.

Hamilton's amendment, making the pay of cadets $540, without an additional ration, was agreed to. All the other amendments either in regard to cadets, or professors were voted down. Without discussing the bill the committee rose.

Barnum offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee of 7 to take measures for superintending the funeral of H. H. Starkweather, late member from Connecticut, who died in Washington this morning, that his remains be removed to Norwalk, Connecticut, under charge of the Sergeant-at-Arms, and attended by the committee, and that as an additional mark of respect, the House adjourn. The resolutions were agreed to. Barnum, Garfield, Wheeler, Phelps, Hoar, Landers, of Connecticut, and Ash were appointed such committee, and the House adjourned.

The session to-morrow to be for general debate only.

In the House to-day, Paddock, of Nebraska, presented a petition of the chief and headmen of the Ote tribe of Indians praying for the passage of a law authorizing the sale of their reservation and for the removal of said Indians to the Indian Territory, referred to the committee on Indian affairs. He also presented a petition of citizens of Utah asking an appropriation for the centennial exhibition at Philadelphia, referred to the committee on appropriations.

A Delegation from Utah Visit the President.

The President was visited to-day by a delegation from Utah consisting of Oliver A. Patton, register of the land office, General Maxwell, U. S. marshal for Utah, and other prominent gentiles from that Territory. They particularly desired to arrive at some means by which the crime of polygamy may be reached in the courts, and to this end, propose a revision of the jury law by which a polygamist shall be excluded as a juror. Under the present system, with Mormon polygamists in the jury box, it is an impossibility to obtain convictions. The interview also related to the suffrage question in Utah, the delegation contending that the church leaders entirely control the ballot among Mormons, many of whom would vote with the Gentiles if they would be allowed. The President expressed his sympathy for any movements tending to alleviate the present condition of matters in Utah and the evils spoken of by the delegates, and assured them of his persistent aid in all laws passed towards that end.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The national Democratic executive committee meets this evening.

Centennial Appropriation.

The Senate committee on appropriations in their consideration of the million and a half centennial appropriation bill to-day deemed it unnecessary to rectify the clerical error in the preamble, as this does not affect the body of the bill, and might delay the passage of the measure by returning it to the House for concurrence. They, therefore, reported the bill precisely as it came from the House.

Count von Eulenburg, Minister of the Interior, declared that the aim of the Social Democrats was to establish a Red Republic with communism and atheism. Reported Intention of the Sultan to Declare War not Confirmed.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The Russian telegraphic agency has received a dispatch from St. Petersburg, saying that so far, the announcement of the Montenegrin Gazette that the Sultan is resolved to declare war against Montenegro, is unconfirmed. The relations between the Prince and Porte are, however, in a state of great tension. The Powers will exercise strong pressure on both sides to prevent the conflict, which threatens to block the work of pacification.

The Ragusa correspondent of the Times telegraphs that it is impossible, as yet, to obtain any clear idea of Wednesday's engagement on the Trebinje road. It is certain, however, that the Herzegovinians were outflanked and driven off the road, but they were not pursued, nor did they suffer serious loss.

A telegram from Stagno to the Times says: In the attack upon the Turkish camp near Kleck, the insurgents destroyed a village held by the Turks. A Turkish frigate then opened a cannonade on the attacking party which retired after half an hour's firing. The losses are not known.

Cameron's health is fully restored.

English Ritualists.

The Voce Della Verita newspaper, at Rome, noticing the report in the English papers of the secret negotiations between the extremist Anglican clergy, and the Vatican, looking to the secession to Rome of the whole body of ritualists, strenuously denies the existence of any such negotiation, and says there is a powerful, but not secret, move among the English Protestant clergy towards a return to the glorious unity of the church.

The Rev. Frank George Lee, Vicar of All Saints, Lambeth, to whom the correspondent credited the letter to Archbishop Manning, and the promotion of the petition to the Pope on that subject, writes to the Manchester Guardian denying any connection therewith.

Defeat of the Insurgents at Trebigne Admitted.

RAGUSA, Jan. 28.—Accounts from Slavonic sources admit the defeat of the insurgents at the Trebigne road on Wednesday; but represent that the Turks were greatly superior in numbers. They admit a loss of 150 killed, and claim that the Turks lost 1,300.

Two Battles in One Day.

RAGUSA, Jan. 28.—Accounts from Sclavonic sources say there were two simultaneous engagements on Wednesday. The insurgents were beaten at the Trebigne road. The other engagement was near Neum and resulted in the Turks retreating under cover of the fire of their men of war.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The Times special from Ragusa says: In Wednesday's battle, the whole available Turkish forces in Herzegovina, 8,000 men, with artillery and irregulars, attacked the positions held by 2,000 insurgents. The Turks advanced in three columns to within 150 yards of the enemy's lines, receiving their fire steadily. They then halted and threw a strong column around the insurgents' right, which gave way and fled precipitately. The left wing covered their retreat, and while withdrawing, deliberately maintained a fire, which checked the pursuit. The insurgents report a loss of 36 killed and 30 wounded. The Turkish losses are unknown. The insurgent army moved northward on Friday in good order and good spirits.

The Weiner Presse reports, during the insurgent attack on the Turkish camp near Meum yesterday three Turkish men-of-war anchored off Kleck, unexpectedly opened a violent cannonade on the Herzegovinians. As the vessels were in Austrian waters at the time, their action has caused considerable surprise. The result of the attack is not known.

Results of the Battle between the Royalists and Carlists.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The Times correspondent, writing from San Sebastian, summarizes the results of the fighting on Tuesday. On the right and center beyond Hernani, the Alfonsists were successful. On the left, if they really seriously intended to penetrate to Vera, they were completely baffled. Gen. Morionez returned to San Sebastian escorted by two battalions of troops and camped on the captured positions. The writer gives the following description of the fighting on the Vera road: Up to 3 P. M. the Alfonsists seemed to be successful. At the foot of a conical hill on the slope of a great three crowned mountain, where a Carlist battalion was entrenched, the two parties exchanged fire for an hour. At 4 o'clock the Alfonsists attempted to advance with bayonets, but recoiled before the heavy fire from the entrenchments. Then I could see the Carlists leaving their positions and charging down the hill after their retreating foes. An intervening slope hid the combatants from sight, but from the nearer approach of the sound of musketry and the incessant fire of artillery from the Alfonsist forts, I judged the Carlists were following up their success.

The writer concludes: It is generally believed that a simultaneous movement is being made in the provinces of Navarre and Biscay. [illegible], a very few days will prove whether the Carlist war is ended or another campaign is to drag through the coming summer.

SATURDAY MORNING JANUARY 29 1876

MORE DISCLOSURES.

Another big batch of officials at Washington have been indicted for frauds upon the government. From the time of the raid on the Tammany thieves of New York, some five or six years since, there has been a procession and of disclosures of official dishonesty. There was a brief interval between the explosion of Tammany and the Credit Mobilier exposures, but from the latter date there has been no breathing spell.

The country has at last come to appreciate the services of those public men and journals that sounded the alarm some three or four years ago declaring that the public service was honeycombed through and through with corruption. They were set down then as alarmists or chronic fault finders dangerous to the welfare of the community. It is seen now that they were right, only they had no adequate idea of the actual extent of the rottenness.

These disclosures are not gratifying to any rightly directed mind. Only those who are wholly given over to malice can find delight in the development of so much impurity in the administration of public affairs. It is unpleasant to feel that there is none in whose integrity it is safe to repose confidence. And yet little less general than that is the feeling that comes over one as he witnesses the fall of men whom he had regarded as above suspicion. But the investigations must go on. Though the idols of the people be broken one after another till they are all gone the corruption must be hunted down and extirpated, or the government cannot continue to exist. Disagreeable as the duty is, it must be done. There is pain in the amputation of a gangrened limb, but that and death are the only alternatives. So it is with the Republic. The corruption must be unearthed and the dishonest men driven out, or the end is but a question of time, and of short time at that. The ax must be laid at the root of the tree.

There is a feature in these investigations and prosecutions, which, though it has been often adverted to, so distinguishes them from the ordinary cases of the same general nature, as to deserve especial notice. It is, that the investigations and prosecutions have been carried on by the party in power and which must necessarily be held responsible for the impurities brought to light. The Republican is not the only political organization during whose ascendancy the public service has fallen to a large extent into corrupt and unscrupulous hands but it is the only party, in the history of this or any other country to which our recollection now adverts, that has resolutely dragged scoundrelism, into the public gaze, regardless of the effect it might have upon party fortune. It is the only party that has exposed and punished its representatives in the public service, when it might as well have covered up their offenses and escaped the odium of them. This is to be placed to the credit of the Republican party, and it ought to have great weight in the mind of every one who places the stability and ultimate purity of our institutions above party considerations.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLAN.

We find an article in the New York Tribune, the general purport of which is that the independent voters of all parties in the approaching election for President should stand aloof and see what sort of nominations are made by the Republican and Democratic parties, and if neither of these is just the sort of candidate which the times demand, then that a third man be put into the race. It is not contended that this third man coming out at so late a date, could by any possibility be elected, but it is said he might so far divide up the votes as to prevent an election and let the duty of choosing a President devolve on the House of Representatives. We see not one single reason to commend such a course. Why should Republicans who have not acted in harmony with the party in local matters, go into an arrangement, the only tendency of which would be to give the Bourbons two chances instead of one to obtain the President? The House of Representatives would never elect a Republican. So the Tribune's proposition means simply for the independent Republicans to go in and help the Democrats at the popular election, and if they fail then, throw the election into the House where it would be controlled with absolute certainty by the left wing of Price's army. The country is not ready for that yet. The contest is between the Republican and the Democratic party, and there ought to be no skulking. This is no matter of city government, or State and county officials. It is a matter of national concern, and as such it should be met by independent voters upon principle, in defiance of the idiotic twaddle about consistency in which shallow-pated dunces may indulge. Independent Republicans ought to be independent enough to support a good, hard money, equal rights Republican against the field.

OREGON AND THE CENTENNIAL.

The Centennial Commissioners for Oregon as will be seen by a report of their proceedings printed in another column have estimated that seven thousand dollars will be required to enable the State to be properly represented in the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia. As it will not be possible to secure an appropriation of the required sum of money by the legislature in time the committee ask the people of the State who have the ability to do so to come forward and advance it.

The great importance of having the resources of Oregon and the advantages it offers to settlers from abroad seeking new homes on this continent clearly set forth at the coming Exposition at which so many strangers will be present, leads us to hope that in some way the requisite funds will be secured by them. Apart from the shame which Oregonians who may be at the Exposition would feel at seeing Oregon represented poorly, or not at all—which shame those who will remain at home would share to almost an equal degree if the State should not be represented there would be a great opportunity for advertising the merits of the State lost.

Perhaps a million of people will visit Philadelphia during the Exposition. Each of these will repeat the story of what he saw there to fifty or a hundred others. The press will be filled with the most detailed accounts which will be read by persons in all parts of the world. What Oregon will send, will be made known in this way to many millions of people, among whom there will be many desirous of emigrating to some new country. Now laying aside every other reason it is easy to see that as a merely advertising scheme by which to display the inducements to settlers in our State the opportunity is one not to be let slip. We all agree that immigration is what the State most sorely needs for its improvement and development. What is more likely to induce immigration and inspire confidence in what we say about the State than a fair exhibition of its products? If the sum of money asked for by the Board of Commissioners be obtained Oregonians may go to Philadelphia and bring along the splendid wheat and oats and other products of the soil, the excellent timber, the superb salmon and the valuable minerals of the State without fear of contradiction for the proof of the truth of his statements will be there. If this sum of $7,000 were to be raised by the land owners, merchants and capitalists of the State it would not be a bad investment even if only a few made it up. But there is no doubt that the Legislature at its next session will at once appropriate a sufficient sum to repay those who may now advance it.

The Spanish Government certainly has its hands full just now. The Carlists in Spain seem to have worsted the Alfonsists in a battle of some importance—and the rebels in Cuba are, also gaining ground. It is not unlikely that the campaign in Spain will not be ended for many months yet, while the war in Cuba seems further from a close than ever.

The battles between the insurgents and the government troops both in Turkey and Spain, seem to have been a good deal mixed. It is difficult to comprehend whether the insurgents or the government troops were successful.

LETTER FROM OREGON CITY

OREGON CITY, Jan. 28, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Our town seems to have allowed its ordinary business to rest during this month. The union services still continue with increased interest. Last night the church was full to overflowing. Services were conducted by Gen Howard and Bro. Starr presiding elder of Portland district. The subject of religion seems to be the only one talked of in shops, stores, offices everywhere during the week. Bros Flinn, Hon E C Bronough Sparrow, Chattin and Pierce have attended and assisted our own Christians in conducting services. Some of the conversions have been remarkable evidences of the power of grace to redeem man from a wasted life and make instead thereof, a useful citizen and a better neighbor. So far as we see, there is no end yet in sight, and if it fulfills the mission of helping the weak ones and lifting the burden of the weary ones, enables them to look beyond this brief existence and prepare for eternity, then every lover of his fellows, every heart in sympathy with humanity, ought to bid it God speed.

NOW AND THEN

FROM MOHAWK VALLEY

MOHAWK, Jan 22, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I will give you some information about this country. For the last week there has been very good weather. On the 20th however, it snowed a little, but the snow soon went off. The ground froze about two inches. On the 22d, snow fell to the depth of about two inches, which seems likely to lie some time. Stock looks very poor on account of the heavy rains. Not much plowing has been done in this part of the country yet. There has been a great deal of improvement going on in the last year. The bridge across the McKenzie river has helped this country more than anything else could. Before it was built, Mohawk was considered a backwoods place with one log schoolhouse. But last summer a schoolhouse was built 30x40 feet, costing about $500. A great deal of land has been taken up in the last six months, and about twenty families have settled in here during the last year. There are prospects of a sawmill going up next summer, and there are Good Templar and Granger lodges in splendid working order. Yours truly, J D D

THE TERRITORIES.

Olympians are putting up large quantities of ice.

The Echo says: The new coal mine just discovered by Tracy and Stevens on the Skagit river proves to be an eleven foot vein of the very best coal for steam purposes.

R H Hewitt of Olympia secretary of the W. W. I. A., has received a quantity of vegetable seeds and also a variety of barley from the Department of Agriculture at Washington which will be distributed to all who may apply.

The Echo says: "It has become a noticeable fact that when one death is recorded in Olympia, another is reported within twenty four hours. Let us attribute it to what we may the circumstances produce a wonderful effect. No matter how many weeks or months pass without a death within our limits when the first mortal departs this life, it is a problem as to whom death may come before the last sad funeral rites have been performed."

Mr John W Bingham and Miss Sarah E Liles says the Democrat, were married last week by R M Powers, Esq., of Lebanon. As Mr Bingham took his fair bride from the parental roof tree some three miles from Lebanon, without first going through the formality of asking the consent of the old folks and at the dead hour of night the lady's parents are hostile about it. It is now stated that the young lady is a minor and the person or persons who testified when getting the license that she was of age are to be hauled over the coals for it.

Settlers in the northeastern part of Marion county complain of very bad roads and want aid from the county. The county authorities should look after this matter and be liberal.

MORE DISCLOSURES.

Another big batch of officials at Washington have been indicted for frauds upon the government. From the time of the raid on the Tammany thieves of New York, some five or six years since, there has been a ceaseless round of disclosures of official dishonesty. There was a brief interval between the explosion of Tammany and the Credit Mobilier exposures, but from the latter date there has been no breathing spell.

The country has at last come to appreciate the services of those public men and journals that sounded the alarm some three or four years ago, declaring that the public service was honey-combed through and through with corruption. They were set down then as alarmists or chronic fault-finders, dangerous to the welfare of the community. It is seen now that they were right, only they had no adequate idea of the actual extent of the rottenness.

These disclosures are not gratifying to any rightly directed mind. Only those who are wholly given over to malice can find delight in the development of so much impurity in the administration of public affairs. It is unpleasant to feel that there is none in whose integrity it is safe to repose confidence. And yet little less general than that is the feeling that comes over one as he witnesses the fall of men whom he had regarded as above suspicion. But the investigations must go on. Though the idols of the people be broken one after another till they are all gone, the corruption must be hunted down and extirpated, or the government cannot continue to exist. Disagreeable as the duty is, it must be done. There is pain in the amputation of a gangrened limb, but that and death are the only alternatives. So it is with the Republic. The corruption must be unearthed and the dishonest man driven out, or the end is but a question of time, and of short time at that. The ax must be laid at the root of the tree.

There is a feature in these investigations and prosecutions, which, though it has been often adverted to, so distinguishes them from the ordinary cases of the same general nature, as to deserve especial notice. It is, that the investigations and prosecutions have been carried on by the party in power and which must necessarily be held responsible for the impurities brought to light. The Republican is not the only political organization during whose ascendancy the public service has fallen to a large extent into corrupt and unscrupulous hands; but it is the only party, in the history of this or any other country to which our recollection now adverts, that has resolutely dragged scoundrelism, into the public gaze, regardless of the effect it might have upon party fortune. It is the only party that has exposed and punished its representatives in the public service, when it might as well have covered up their offenses and escaped the odium of them. This is to be placed to the credit of the Republican party, and it ought to have great weight in the mind of every one who places the stability and ultimate purity of our Institutions above party considerations.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLAN.

We find an article in the New York Tribune, the general purport of which is that the independent voters of all parties in the approaching election for President should stand aloof and see what sort of nominations are made by the Republican and Democratic parties, and if neither of these is just the sort of candidate which the times demand, then that a third man man be put into the race. It is not contended that this third man coming out at so late a date, could by any possibility be elected, but it is said he might so far divide up the vote as to prevent an election and let the duty of choosing a President devolve on the House of Representatives. We see not one single reason to commend such a course. Why should Republicans who have not acted in harmony with the party in local matters, go into an arrangement, the only tendency of which would be to give the Bourbons two chances instead of one to obtain the President? The House of Representatives would never elect a Republican. So the Tribune's proposition means simply for the independent Republicans to go in and help the Democrats at the popular election, and if they fail then, throw the election into the House where it would be controlled with absolute certainty by the left wing of Price's army. The country is not ready for that yet. The contest is between the Republican and the Democratic party and there ought to be no skulking. This is no matter of city government, or State and county officials; it is a matter of national concern, and as such it should be met by independent voters upon principle, in defiance of the idiotic twaddle about consistency in which shallow-pated dunces may indulge. Independent Republicans ought to be independent enough to support a good, hard money, equal rights Republican "against the field."

OREGON AND THE CENTENNIAL.

The Centennial Commissioners for Oregon, as will be seen by a report of their proceedings printed in another column, have estimated that seven thousand dollars will be required to enable the State to be properly represented in the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia. As it will not be possible to secure an appropriation of the required sum of money by the legislature in time, the committee ask the people of the State, who have the ability to do so, to come forward and advance it.

The great importance of having the resources of Oregon, and the advantages it offers to settlers from abroad seeking new homes on this continent, clearly set forth at the coming Exposition, at which so many strangers will be present, leads us to hope that in some way the requisite funds will be secured by them. Apart from the shame which Oregonians, who may be at the Exposition, would feel at seeing Oregon represented poorly, or not at all—which shame, those who will remain at home would share to almost an equal degree if the State should not be represented, there would be a great opportunity for advertising the merits of the State lost.

Perhaps a million of people will visit Philadelphia during the Exposition. Each of these will repeat the story of what he saw there to fifty or a hundred others. The press will be filled with the most detailed accounts, which will be read by persons in all parts of the world. What Oregon will send, will be made known in this way to many millions of people, among whom there will be many desirous of emigrating to some new country. Now, laying aside every other reason, it is easy to see that, as a merely advertising scheme by which to display the inducements to settlers of our State, the opportunity is one not to be let slip. We all agree that immigration is what the State most sorely needs for its improvement and development. What is more likely to induce immigration and inspire confidence in what we say about the State, than a fair exhibition of its products? If the sum of money asked for by the Board of Commissioners be obtained, Oregonians may go to Philadelphia and brag about the splendid wheat and oats and other products of the soil,—the excellent timber, the superb salmon, and the valuable minerals of the State without fear of contradiction; for the proof of the truth of his statements will be there. If this sum of $7,000 were to be raised by the land-owners, merchants and capitalists of the State it would not be a bad investment, even if only a few made it up. But there is no doubt that the Legislature at its next session will at once appropriate a sufficient sum to repay those who may now advance it.

The Spanish Government certainly has its hands full just now. The Carlists in Spain seem to have worsted the Alfonsists in a battle of some importance—and the rebels in Cuba are, also, gaining ground. It is not unlikely that the campaign in Spain will not be ended for many months yet, while the war in Cuba seems farther from a close than ever.

The battles between the insurgents and the government troops, both in Turkey and Spain, seem to have been a good deal mixed. It is difficult to comprehend whether the insurgents or the government troops were successful.

LETTER FROM OREGON CITY.

OREGON CITY, Jan. 28, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Our town seems to have allowed its ordinary business to rest during this month. The union services still continue with increased interest. Last night the church was full to overflowing. Services were conducted, by Gen. Howard and Bro. Starr, presiding elder of Portland district. The subject of religion seems to be the only one talked of in shops, stores, offices, everywhere, during the week. Bros. Flinn, Hon. E. C. Bronough, Sparrow, Chattin and Pierce have attended and assisted our own Christians in conducting services. Some of the conversions have been remarkable evidences of the power of grace to redeem man from a wasted life and make, instead, thereof, a useful citizen and a better neighbor. So far as we see, there is no end yet in sight, and if it fulfills the mission, of helping the weak ones and lifting the burden of the weary ones, enables them to look beyond this brief existence and prepare for eternity, then every lover of his fellows, every heart in sympathy with humanity, ought to bid it God speed.

NOW AND THEN.

FROM MOHAWK VALLEY.

MOHAWK, Jan. 22, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I will give you some information about this country. For the last week there has been very good weather. On the 20th, however, it snowed a little, but the snow soon went off. The ground froze about two inches. On the 22d, snow fell to the depth of about two inches, which seems likely to lie some time. Stock looks very poor on account of the heavy rains. Not much plowing has been done in this part of the country yet. There has been a great deal of improvement going on in the last year. The bridge across the McKenzie river has helped this country more than anything else could. Before it was built, Mohawk was considered a backwoods place, with one log schoolhouse. But last summer a schoolhouse was built 30x40 feet, costing about $500. A great deal of land has been taken up in the last six months, and about twenty families have settled in here during the last year. There are prospects of a sawmill going up next summer, and there are Good Templar and Granger lodges in splendid working order. Yours truly,

D. D.

THE TERRITORIES.

Olympians are putting up large quantities of ice.

The Echo says: The new coal mine, just discovered by Tracy and Stevens, on the Skagit river, proves to be an eleven foot vein of the very best coal for steam purposes.

R. H. Hewitt, of Olympia, secretary of the W. W. I. A., has received a quantity of vegetable seeds, and also a variety of barley, from the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, which will be distributed to all who may apply.

The Echo says: "It has become a noticeable fact that when one death is recorded in Olympia, another is reported within twenty-four hours. Let us attribute it to what we may, the circumstances produce a wonderful effect. No matter how many weeks or months pass without a death within our limits, when the first mortal departs this life, it is a problem as to whom death may come before the last sad funeral rites have been performed."

Mr. John W. Bingham and Miss Sarah E. Liles, says the Democrat, were married last week by R. M. Powers, Esq., of Lebanon. As Mr. Bingham took his fair bride from the parental roof-tree, some three miles from Lebanon, without first going through the formality of asking the consent of the old folks, and at the dead hour of night, the lady's parents are "hostile" about it. It is now stated that the young lady is a minor, and the person or persons who testified when getting the license that she was of age are to be hauled over the coals for it.

Settlers in the northeastern part of Marion county complain of very bad roads and want aid from the county. The county authorities should look after this matter and be liberal.

CEREALS FOR THE CENTENNIAL The Centennial Commissioners have succeeded in collecting a magnificent assortment of cereals, which are temporarily on exhibition in one of the rooms of the St Charles Hotel building, where they will be allowed to remain until shipped East. There are about forty two varieties of the cereals commonly known in this State including the various wheats—spring fall etc—grasses, barley, rye oats etc Great care has been exercised in the selection of the varieties of grain and grasses and none but the very best collected Without an exception the grain is large, plump and fully developed and are marvels of what a fertile soil and favorable climate can produce These cereals are now arranged in large round glass jars which are kept tightly closed and the contents excluded from exposure to the air By this precaution the grains can be prevented from shrinkage and will reach their destination plump and clean. When ready for shipment East the cereals will be placed in small sacks appropriately labeled to prevent confusion and facilitate easy and rapid classification put into tight boxes and sent as ordinary freight On reaching Philadelphia the grain is to be taken out and arranged in [illegible] glass jars which will enable the varieties to be exhibited most advantageously Each bottle will have a label attached giving the variety [illegible] where and by whom raised [illegible] of cereals will be on exhibition from this far off "Sundown State" will make the optics of those who attend this great international gathering stick out with wonderment not wholly unmixed with envy Oregon against the world for her grain wool red apples and pretty women

PAINE'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION—To day is the 139th anniversary of the birthday of Thomas Paine author of the "Age of Reason," "Common Sense" "Rights of Man and "Crisis," one of our revolutionary patriots, but more generally known on account of his deistical views and religious writings The Liberal Association will celebrate the event in an appropriate manner at Good Templar Hall to-morrow at 2 o clock P M The order of the day will be, an oration, readings and short speeches properly interluded with music and song provided for the occasion The members of the association are to sing a poem of Paine's own composing entitled Liberty Tree." The singing section of the Portland Turn Verein have kindly consented to favor the meeting with singing 'Vater Rhein' and other German songs Mr A C Edmonds has been [illegible] to deliver the oration Liberals from various parts of the State have been invited and are expected to be in attendance A cordial invitation is extended to the public to be present and participate in the celebration

CHIEF ENGINEER LYON.—In the last issue of the West Shore, we observe a very neat wood-cut picture of Mr. J H Lyon, chief [illegible] of the Portland fire department The subject of the illustration was born in New York in 1829, and is consequently now 47 years of age. Mr Lyon joined the department in New York in 1850, becoming a member of Engine No 4 In 1851 he changed to Hose No 6, of which he remained a member until his departure for this coast In 1856 he came to Sacramento, and that same year helped to organize Young America Engine Co No 6, of which he served as foreman five times In 1862 he came to this city and two years later joined Willamette No 1 In this company he served three terms as president and three terms as secretary He also served as president of the board of delegates for one term He is an ex-[illegible] in New York, Sacramento and also in this city.

AN AGREEABLE AFFAIR—Our regular Salem correspondent says "The Episcopal sociable at Dr. A. M. Belts' Thursday evening proved to be more successful than was anticipated. Their residence, on Commercial street was filled to overflowing An amusing charade proved a pleasant surprise, the stage—an impromptu affair—being erected at one end of the room. The various characters were well sustained, and the piece proved a pleasing feature of the occasion, Mr. and Mrs Belt proved popular as host and hostess and in making their guests welcome were ably assisted by their daughters, Mrs Huelet and Miss Mira Belt. The refreshments were served out in a liberal manner The collection amounted to $37 70 We understand the next reunion will be held at the residence of Dr E Y Chase some evening next week on which occasion participants will probably be favored with some exercises by the blind pupils"

OAT MEAL MILL.—Mr. John Milne of the Oakland gristmill, Hillsboro, received by the bark Canton, a pair of burrs and machinery direct from Scotland The stones and machinery were made expressly for turning out oat meal The machinery was made from drawings executed by Mr Milne With this machinery a quality of oat meal equal to that made in Scotland can be turned out The mill will be in running order in about ten days when about ten tons of meal can be ground per day.

LECTURE ON THOS PAINE—Dr A I Lindsley will deliver a lecture to-morrow evening at the First Presbyterian church on the subject of 'What did Thomas Paine do for humanity, morality and religion to entitle him to pre-eminence?' The disciples of Paine and those who are disposed to adopt his views are invited to hear a fair discussion The admirers of rational views and impartial history will not be disappointed.

CONCERNING CITY LICENSES

An ordinance "to impose and regulate licenses" was passed by the common council of the city of Portland on the 15th of December 18[illegible] and approved by His Honor Mayor Chapman on the 20th of the same month By the provisions of the new ordinance licenses are imposed on a certain class who have heretofore enjoyed immunity from municipal tariff We refer to persons who reside in the country and are engaged in the business of bringing into the city the products of farms, gardens and dairies and vending them about the streets This has been considerable comment among those who are directly affected by the provision of the ordinance since its passage and approval and no small measure of opposition has been evoked From all we can learn there seems to exist a settled determination on the part of farmers, gardeners and produce venders to refuse to pay the required license and to test in the courts the validity of the ordinance So that a clearer understanding of the ordinance may be had we republish that section which refers directly to the matter in question

Sect [illegible] Peddlers shall be classified and rated as follows When traveling with more than two animals the first class when traveling with two animals, the second class when traveling with one animal the third class and when traveling on foot the fourth class Peddlers of the first class shall pay a license of one hundred dollars per quarter or twelve dollars per week, the second class shall pay a quarterly license of seventy five dollars or a weekly license of eight dollars the third class shall pay fifty dollars per quarter, or six dollars per week and peddlers of the fourth class shall pay two dollars and fifty cents a week or fifteen dollars a quarter Provided That no license shall be issued to any peddler as a quarterly license, and all peddlers licenses shall date from the day of payment anything in said Ordinance No 1491 to the contrary notwithstanding Any persons except persons peddling newspapers Bibles and religious tracts and farmers or persons peddling the product of their own farms, gardens or milk ranches who offer to sell at retail or wholesale goods, wares merchandise or other commodities, as traveling from place to place in the city of Portland shall be regarded as a peddler under this Ordinance

The italics are ours There can be no misapprehension or misconstruction of the plain provisions of the above section and, so far as the ordinance itself goes, there really seems to be no way in which the payment of licenses can be evaded However the question as to the right of the common council to impose such license on a class of persons residing outside the corporate limits of the city must be settled in the courts A number of persons belonging to the class included in the above section, we understand, have expressed a determination to fight it out through the courts" Chief Lappeus is now engaged in collecting the quarterly licenses now due and payable, and under the new ordinance he has no option in the premises It becomes his duty as an officer of the law, to notify all persons engaged in carrying on the business specified who are required by the ordinance to pay license, that the same is due Should such persons neglect or refuse to take out license after proper notification, then it becomes the duty of the chief of police to enter complaint and prosecute the delinquents Some of the peddlers (mentioned in the section) have gone and paid their licenses, but Mr Lappeus informs us that the greater portion of the class alluded to have declined or neglected, thus far to come forward and take out license Unless these persons shall comply at once with the requirements of the ordinance Chief Lappeus proposes to proceed against them by due process of law There is no doubt but that the validity of the ordinance will be tested in the courts

IMPROVEMENT OF THE COWLITZ RIVER

Pursuant to public notice given, the citizens of Cowlitz county Washington Territory met at the Freeport hall in the town of Freeport in said county, on Saturday, the 15th day of January A D 1876, for the purpose of taking into consideration the subject of asking of Congress an appropriation of money for the purpose of improving the navigation of the Cowlitz river and protecting its banks from washing away etc

The meeting was called to order and elected Hon H D Huntington chairman, and J D Stone secretary

The object of the meeting being stated sundry persons addressed the meeting Hon Jas B LaDu then offered the following preamble and resolutions which were unanimously adopted

WHEREAS Cowlitz county is one of the oldest settled counties of Washington Territory and the Cowlitz river one of the most important tributaries of the Columbia river below the Cascades in said Territory affording an outlet for the products of the [illegible] agricultural portion of said county and

WHEREAS Said stream by reason of the rapidity of its current during its frequent rises is constantly washing away its banks to the great damage of the settlers along the same and impeding navigation by the yearly accumulation of snags and driftwood and

WHEREAS The General Government is yearly appropriating millions of dollars for the improvement of rivers and harbors throughout the oldest most thickly settled and best portions of the country and

WHEREAS The exigencies of the case demand that something should be done immediately to prevent the further encroachments of said Cowlitz river thereby securing to the pioneers the homes they have made in this far Western Territory by years of toil and privation and

WHEREAS The encroachments of said river are of such magnitude and extent as to be beyond control by the private enterprise of the settlers thereon and if immediate aid be not rendered by the government many of the most valuable farms along said stream may at no distant day be rendered valueless and,

WHEREAS The delta formed by the junction of the Cowlitz and Columbia rivers is one of the richest bodies of land in Washington Territory comprising within its limits an area of about thirty thousand acres and should be made available for settlement by protection from the annual inundations of said rivers therefore

Be it resolved That the Hon Orange Jacobs our Delegate in Congress be requested to use his best endeavors to secure an appropriation of $15 000 to be expended under direction of an officer of the Government in removing obstructions to the navigation of said Cowlitz river and in preventing the further washing away of its banks

Resolved, That our Delegate be also requested to use his efforts to have said officer in case said appropriation be granted, examine said delta and estimate the probable expense of protecting the same from overflow and report to Congress as early as practicable to the end that an appropriation may be asked for at some future day for that object

Resolved, That a certified copy of the proceedings of this meeting be forwarded to Hon Orange Jacobs and also a petition to accompany the same

On motion, the meeting voted that there be a copy of the proceedings and resolutions of this meeting be sent to the OREGONIAN, and another copy of the same to the Astorian, for publication

On motion the meeting adjourned sine die

PLUMMER FRUIT DRYER.

AS A PROOF OF WHAT I HAVE HERETOFORE stated to the people of Oregon I give below a letter from the Plummer Fruit Drying Co of East Portland. After the close of business of 1875, fully understanding it after using it one entire season and as a proof to substantiate what they say they now contemplate putting up another Dryer of the same capacity of the one they now have which will increase their capacity to five hundred bushels of apples per day Having now located here in Portland for the purpose of supplying the demand for Fruit Dryers in Oregon and Washington Territory I can supply these dryers at a cost of from $2 000 to $4 000 according to capacity Warranted to dry from 8 to 16 bushels of apples per hour at a small cost for labor and fuel These machines being so cheap and simple in construction they cannot fail to supersede all other known machines I would also say to the fruit growers that I have invented a Machine (and am now waiting for a patent) that will cut and spread the fruit on the trays with a very small amount of labor I also have invented a Peach Parer that is on an entirely new principle paring soft as well as hard does its work well with great speed and slices and pits the fruit ready for the Dryer in the best possible manner and at a great saving in quantity of fruit

EAST PORTLAND, Jan 4th 1876

MR W S PLUMMER—Dear Sir As this is a time when all are much interested in Fruit Drying we think that in justice to you and for the information of the public it is but right and proper that we should give all the information that we can Now after having operated your Dryer during the season we feel warranted in saying that for the amount of money invested we still believe as we did [illegible] the start that your Dryer is the best Dryer [illegible] introduced into this country Its capacity of the Dryer we find to be about 8 (eight) bushels per hour The dried fruit we claim to be as good as any [illegible] [illegible] not as much bleached as the Alden fruit and we are satisfied that we can produce dried fruit at less expense than the Alden The stockholders of our Company [illegible] [illegible] confidence in the Plummer Dryer [illegible] [illegible] capital stock of [illegible] twelve thousand dollars [illegible] of adding one more Dryer to the present one and making other improvements for next season We will further say that we believe [illegible] [illegible] improvement [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

CEREALS FOR THE CENTENNIAL The Centennial Commissioners have succeeded in collecting a magnificent assortment of cereals, which are temporarily on exhibition in one of the rooms of the St Charles hotel building where they will be allowed to remain until shipped East. There are about forty two varieties of the cereals commonly known in this State including the various wheats—spring fall etc—grasses barley, rye oats etc. Great care has been exercised in the selection of the varieties of grain and grasses and none but the very best collected. Without an exception the grains are large plump and fully developed and are marvels of what a fertile soil and favorable climate can produce. These cereals are now arranged in large round glass jars which are kept tightly closed and the contents excluded from exposure to the air. By this precaution the grains can be prevented from shrinkage and will reach their destination plump and clean. When ready for shipment East the cereals will be placed in small sacks appropriately labeled to prevent confusion and facilitate easy and rapid classification put into tight boxes and sent as ordinary freight. On reaching Philadelphia the grain is to be taken out and arranged in square glass jars which will enable the varieties to be exhibited most advantageously. Each bottle will have a label attached giving the variety of grain, where and by whom raised. Such an array of cereals as will be on exhibition from this far off "Sundown State" will make the optics of those who attend the great international gathering, stick out with wonderment and wholly unmixed with envy. Oregon against the world for her grain wood red apples and pretty women.

PAINE'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.—To day is the 139th anniversary of the birthday of Thomas Paine author of the "Age of Reason," "Common Sense," "Rights of Man" and "Crisis," one of our revolutionary patriots, but more generally known on account of his liberal views and religious writings. The Liberal Association will celebrate the event in an appropriate manner at Good Templar Hall to-morrow at 2 o clock P M. The order of the day will be, an oration readings and short speeches, properly interlarded with music and song provided for the occasion. The members of the association are to sing a poem of Paine's own composing entitled "Liberty Tree." The singing section of the Portland Turn-Verein have kindly consented to favor the meeting with singing "Vater Rhein" and other German songs. Mr A C Edmunds has been selected to deliver the oration. Liberals from various parts of the State have been invited and are expected to be in attendance. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to be present and participate in the celebration.

CHIEF ENGINEER LYON.—In the last issue of the West Shore, we observe a very neat wood-cut picture of Mr J H Lyon, chief [illegible] of the Portland fire department. The subject of the illustration was born in New York in 1829, and is consequently now 47 years of age. Mr Lyon joined the department in New York in 1850, becoming a member of Engine No 4. In 1851 he changed to Hose No 5, of which he remained a member until his departure for this coast. In 1855 he came to Sacramento, and that same year helped to organize Young America Engine Co No 6, of which he served as foreman five times. In 1862 he came to this city and two years later joined Willamette No 1. In this company he served three terms as president and three terms as secretary. He also served as president of the board of delegates for one term. He is an exempt in New York, Sacramento and also in this city.

AN AGREEABLE AFFAIR.—Our regular Salem correspondent says: "The Episcopal sociable at Dr. A. M. Belts Thursday evening proved to be more successful than was anticipated. Their residence on Commercial street was filled to overflowing. An amusing charade proved a pleasant surprise, the stage—an impromptu affair—being erected at one end of the room. The various characters were well sustained, and the piece proved a pleasing feature of the occasion. Mr and Mrs Belt proved popular as host and hostess and in making their guests welcome were ably assisted by their daughters Mrs Hudelot and Miss Mira Belt. The refreshments were served out in a liberal manner. The collection amounted to $32 70. We understand the next reunion will be held at the residence of Dr L Y Chase some evening next week on which occasion participants will probably be favored with some exercises by the blind pupils."

OAT MEAL MILL.—Mr John Milne of the Oakland gristmill Hillsboro received by the bark Santos a pair of burrs and machinery direct from Scotland. The stones and machinery were made expressly for turning out oat meal. The machinery was made from drawings executed by Mr Milne. With this machinery a quality of oat meal equal to that made in Scotland can be turned out. The mill will be in running order in about ten days when about ten tons of meal can be ground per day.

LECTURE ON THOS PAINE. Dr A J Lindsley will deliver a lecture to morrow evening at the First Presbyterian church on the subject of "What did Thomas Paine do for humanity, morality and religion to entitle him to pre-eminence." The disciples of Paine and those who are disposed to adopt his views, are invited to hear a fair discussion. The admirers of rational views and impartial history will not be disappointed.

CONCERNING CITY LICENSES

An ordinance "to impose and regulate licenses" was passed by the common council of the city of Portland on the 15th of December 1875 and approved by His Honor Mayor Chapman on the 20th of the same month. By the provisions of the new ordinance licenses are imposed on a certain class who have heretofore enjoyed immunity from municipal tariff. We refer to persons who reside in the country and are engaged in the business of bringing into the city the products of farms, gardens and dairies and vending them about the streets. There has been considerable comment among those who are directly affected by the provisions of the ordinance since its passage and approval, and no small measure of opposition has been evoked. From all we can learn there seems to exist a settled determination on the part of farmers, gardeners and produce vendors to refuse to pay the required license and to test in the courts the validity of the ordinance. So that a clearer understanding of the ordinance may be had we republish that section which refers directly to the matter in question.

Section 3. Peddlers shall be classified and rated as follows: When traveling with more than two animals the first class; when traveling with two animals the second class; when traveling with one animal the third class; and when traveling on foot the fourth class. Peddlers of the first class shall pay a license of one hundred dollars per quarter or twelve dollars per week; the second class shall pay a quarterly license of seventy five dollars or a weekly license of eight dollars; the third class shall pay fifty dollars per quarter, or six dollars per week; and peddlers of the fourth class shall pay two dollars and fifty cents a week or fifteen dollars a quarter. Provided That no license shall be issued to any peddler as a quarterly license, and all peddlers licenses shall date from the day of payment anything in said Ordinance No 1491 to the contrary notwithstanding. Any persons except persons peddling newspapers, Bibles and religious tracts and farmers or persons peddling the product of their own farms, gardens or milk ranches who offer to sell at retail or wholesale goods, wares merchandise or other commodities, as traveling from place to place in the city of Portland shall be regarded as a peddler under this Ordinance.

The italics are ours. There can be no misapprehension or misconstruction of the plain provisions of the above section, and, so far as the ordinance itself goes there really seems to be no way in which the payment of licenses can be evaded. However, the question as to the right of the common council to impose such license on a class of persons residing outside the corporate limits of the city must be settled in the courts. A number of persons belonging to the class included in the above section, we understand, have expressed a determination to fight it out through the courts. Chief Lappeus is now engaged in collecting the quarterly licenses now due and payable and under the new ordinance he has no option in the premises. It becomes his duty as an officer of the law to notify all persons engaged in carrying on the business specified who are required by the ordinance to pay license that the same is due. Should such persons neglect or refuse to take out license after proper notification, then it becomes the duty of the chief of police to enter complaint and prosecute the delinquents. Some of the peddlers (mentioned in the section) have gone and paid their licenses but Mr Lappeus informs us that the greater portion of the class alluded to have declined or neglected, thus far to come forward and take out license. Unless these persons shall comply at once with the requirements of the ordinance, Chief Lappeus proposes to proceed against them by due process of law. There is no doubt but that the validity of the ordinance will be tested in the courts.

In connection with his lecture Mr White will exhibit a number of large panoramic views, which have been painted by him of many of the wonderful features of that mysterious region. Several original poems will be recited during the evening by a professional elocutionist. Music will be furnished by an orchestra and the entertainment gives every promise of being pleasing and instructive. Mr White is a deserving artist and we hope to see a full house. IMPROVEMENT OF THE COWLITZ RIVER

Pursuant to public notice given, the citizens of Cowlitz county Washington Territory met at the Freeport hall in the town of Freeport in said county on Saturday, the 15th day of January A D 1876, for the purpose of taking into consideration the subject of asking of Congress an appropriation of money for the purpose of improving the navigation of the Cowlitz river and protecting its banks from washing away etc.

The meeting was called to order and elected Hon H D Huntington chairman, and J D Stone secretary.

The object of the meeting being stated sundry persons addressed the meeting. Hon Jas [illegible] LaDu then offered the following preamble and resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS Cowlitz county is one of the oldest settled counties of Washington Territory, and the Cowlitz river is one of the most important tributaries [illegible]

WHEREAS Said river [illegible] during its frequent rises is constantly washing away its banks to the great damage of the settlers along the same and impeding navigation by the yearly accumulation of snags and driftwood, and

WHEREAS The General Government is yearly appropriating millions of dollars for the improvement of rivers and harbors throughout the oldest and most thickly settled and richest portions of the country, and

WHEREAS The exigencies of the case demand that something should be done immediately to prevent the further encroachments of said Cowlitz river thereby securing to the pioneers the homes they have made in this far Western territory by years of toil and privation, and

WHEREAS The encroachments of said river are of such magnitude and extent as to be beyond control by the private enterprise of the settlers thereon and if immediate aid be not rendered by the government many of the most valuable farms along said stream may at no distant day be rendered valueless, and

WHEREAS The lands formed by the junction of the Cowlitz and Columbia rivers is one of the richest bodies of land in Washington Territory comprising within its limits an area of about thirty thousand acres and should be made available for settlement by protection from the annual inundations of said rivers, therefore

Be it resolved That the Hon Orange Jacobs our Delegate in Congress be requested to use his best endeavors to secure an appropriation of $15,000 to be expended under direction of an officer of the Government in removing obstructions to the navigation of said Cowlitz river and in preventing the further washing away of its banks.

Resolved That our Delegate be also requested to use his efforts to have said officer in case said appropriation be granted examine said delta and estimate the probable expense of protecting the same from overflow and report to Congress as early as practicable to the end that an appropriation may be asked for at some future day for that object.

Resolved, That a certified copy of the proceedings of this meeting be forwarded to Hon Orange Jacobs and also a petition to accompany the same.

On motion the meeting voted that there be a copy of the proceedings and resolutions of this meeting be sent to the OREGONIAN, and another copy of the same to the Astorian, for publication.

On motion the meeting adjourned sine die.

Neglected Coughs and Colds.—Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough or common cold in its first stage. That which in the beginning would yield to Brown's Bronchial Troches if neglected often works upon the lungs.

PLUMMER FRUIT DRYER.

AS A PROOF OF WHAT I HAVE HERETOFORE stated to the people of Oregon I give below a letter from the Plummer Fruit Drying Co of East Portland. After the close of business of 1875 fully and using it after using it one entire season and as a proof to substantiate what they say they now contemplate putting up another Dryer of the same capacity of the one they now have which will increase their capacity to five hundred bushels of apples per day. Having now located here in Portland for the purpose of supplying the demand for Fruit Dryers in Oregon and Washington Territory I can supply these dryers at a cost of from $[illegible] to $1,000 according to capacity. Warranted to dry from 8 to 16 bushels of apples per hour at a small cost for labor and fuel. These machines being so cheap and simple in construction they cannot fail to supersede all other known machines. I would also say to the fruit growers that I have invented a Machine (and am now waiting for a patent) that will cut and spread the fruit on the trays with a very small amount of labor. I also have invented a [illegible] parer that is on an entirely new principle, paring soft as well as hard. [illegible] its work well with great speed and slices and places the fruit ready for the Dryer in the best possible manner and at a great saving in quantity of fruit.

SATURDAY MORNING JANUARY [illegible]

THE DEATH OF BAKER

[The following lines which have never before been published—was written says an exchange by Dr A [illegible] Baker soon after the death of his brother Gen, E D Baker who fell in the bloody conflict at Ball's Bluff They were inscribed to Senator J A McDougall an old friend and comrade of the deceased General's and having been found among his papers, have been sent for publication]

'Twas a calm October morning
  Long before the East was gray
When our chief received the order
  Straight to marshal his array
[illegible] was each order given
  [illegible]
He to lead his own battalion
  [illegible] the fight

A [illegible]
  In their brightest [illegible] day
[illegible]
  Do not seek the thickest fray
Think how in your [illegible]
  [illegible]
Mix not in the hottest battle
  Do not venture forth and

Said he If the day goes with us
  If [illegible] the field our own
If that [illegible] duty
  Wistar leads the column on
If [illegible] by numbers
  We are like to lose the day
If my own [illegible]
  In the fury of the fray

Should I lose my valiant right arm—
  If by rebel steel or ball
Mid the smoke and shock of battle
  Gallant Wistar chance to fall—
Then shall those who hear the story
  In Senate hall of Sunset State,
Know I hold a General's duty
  Is to dare a soldier's fate "

Vaulting lightly on his charger
  With a smile serene [illegible]
Thus my gallant gifted brother
  Rode to that unequal fight
Prompt and free his life to offer
  For the cause he loved so well
Other pens must trace the story
  How he fought and how he fell

JUST CHARGE IT

"Charles what did this peach preserve cost?"

"I'm sure I don't know Hannah"

"But you brought it this morning"

"I know I did but I didn't ask the price of it"

"Did you pay for it?"

"No"

"Why not?"

"O, because I couldn't make change I have opened an account with Mr Waldron and shall hereafter settle once in three months"

The conversation was carried on at the tea table between Charles Matthews and his wife Matthews was a young mechanic who had just commenced housekeeping and as he was making excellent wages he could afford to live pretty well After he had made known his determined arrangement to his wife she remained some time in silent thought

"Charles" she at length said in a mild persuasive tone "I think it would be better to pay for things as you take them You know you get your pay for work every Saturday night and you could pay as you go very easily"

"I know I could," replied Mr Matthews with the air of a man who had unanswerable arguments at his command, "but then it would not be near so handy You see I shall save all the trouble of making change and shall not only save time, but also avoid making mistakes"

"Mistakes?" repeated Hannah "How can mistakes occur when you pay for things as you get them?"

"I will tell you Sometimes it may not be convenient to pay for a thing when I get it—I may forget my money, or I may only take it on trial—then if I pay for a part and not for all some things may get charged which I pay for No Hannah, a settlement once a quarter will be the best and most convenient all round I am satisfied of it"

"Well, perhaps it may," said the wife, with an earnest tone and look and yet with a smile, "but I cannot think as you do"

"But why not?"

"Why on all accounts In the first place you will buy more than if you paid cash Now you needn't shake your head, for I know it There are many little luxuries little extras which we do not need, but which you will be apt to buy if you do not have to pay the money down I know something of this credit system, and I know it is not a fair or good thing In the second place if you pay cash for everything you will get your goods cheaper A trader will sell cheaper when he can have the money in his hands than when he has to carry out the amount on his ledger"

"But let me tell you, Hannah that Mr Waldron will not cheat He is not the man to take advantage in that way"

"You misunderstand me Charles do you not know that all traders can afford to sell cheaper when they have the money in their hands and do not have to carry the amount to their ledgers They could afford to do so Traders like to secure such customers I think you will find it for your advantage to try the cash system Now I do not believe you would have bought this peach preserve if you had to pay cash for it"

"But I bought that to please you and thought you would be pleased"

"I know you did" she replied as she laced her hand affectionately upon his shoulder "I know you would do anything to please me but for the sake of helping you I would forego all such things Then after a few years perhaps we might own a little cottage of our own"

For several days Charles only sent up from the store what was really needed At length as he went to the store one morning on his way to his work he saw some splendid pickles in fancy jars He had ordered the articles he needed, and was about to leave when Mr Waldron spoke,

"Mr Matthews," said he "don't you want a jar of pickles? I carried my wife in a jar last evening, and she thinks them superior to any she ever saw"

Now Charles knew that his wife had plenty of plain pickled cucumbers, some that her mother had put down for her, but Mr Waldron's wife had some of these fancy ones and why shouldn't Hannah?

[illegible] so he ordered the jar and as it was inconvenient to pay for it, ordered it charged.

"Mr Matthews anything you may want you can order at any time and you may rest assured that we shall be very happy to accommodate you"

Now this was flattering to young Matthews' feelings to think that the trader had such confidence in him and he went away with an exceeding good opinion of himself and of [illegible] credit and of the storekeeper in particular

Only a dollar Yes—only a dollar on the trader's ledger—this was of no account [illegible] one's pocket—that was [illegible] had been obliged to pay the cash at the time

"Ah Matthews look here [illegible]" And so Mr Waldron led our hero to the back store and opened a box

"[illegible]"

"They are nice," replied [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] "Anything else this morning?"

[illegible] And as Matthews went [illegible] perhaps [illegible] twelve dollars a week [illegible] but the trouble was [illegible] two dollars and with the [illegible] attached to his watch

"What have you got there?" asked his wife [illegible] the husband with an air [illegible] "I made a bargain [illegible] how much I paid

[illegible] you thinking of? Jack Cummins bought this chain two months ago and paid twenty dollars for it Why just heft it and see how heavy it is Eighteen carats fine Jack was hard up for money and let me have it for thirteen dollars"

"It is cheap to be sure" returned Hannah but yet with no such pleasurable surprise as her husband had expected "But" she added "you did not need it and I fear you will feel the loss of [illegible]"

"Pooh I have not yet enough You know I have spent but very little lately I have been pretty saving"

"But you forget our things Charles The money which you have on hand is not yours"

"Not mine?" he exclaimed

"No it belongs to the storekeeper and to the [illegible] and our landlord You know they must be paid"

"[illegible] about them I know it don't cost anywhere near twelve dollars a week [illegible] I have had an estimate There is Wilkins who works beside me at the shop he has four children and only gets the same wages I do and yet he lays up two or three dollars each week"

"Yes" said Hannah "I know he does I was in to see his wife yesterday and she was telling me how they get along Mr Wilkins takes his basket twice a week and goes to market and buys his meat and vegetables and trades for cash and so gets everything at the very best advantage So he does at the store He lays in a good quantity of those articles which will keep and buys butter eggs apples and such things by the quantity when the market is full and they are cheap and he always buys enough to last his family over the season of scarcity when such things are high His butter for instance he bought for 22 cents per pound a firkin of it and it is much sweeter than that for which you paid 48 cents yesterday"

"Forty eight cents!" repeated the young man in surprise

"Yes I asked Mr Waldron's man when he brought it up and he said it had risen to 48 cents Mr Wilkins got 20 dozen of eggs some time ago for 20 cents a dozen and his wife packed them down and they keep well You will have to pay Mr Waldron 40 cents for those he sent up yesterday"

Charles Matthews was somewhat astonished at this view of the case but it could not be helped now and the subject was dropped His gold chain has lost its charm It did not look so well even in his own eyes as the old black cord which he had worn before

At length the end of the quarter came around The first bill was the rent which amounted to thirty one dollars The next was the butcher's bill of thirty six dollars Charles was astonished to see how his meat bill footed up But when he saw how many steaks he had had at thirty cents a pound the cause of the wonder disappeared Next he paid the baker's bill which was thirteen dollars When he came home in the evening he had paid all the bills except the grocery bill Mr Waldron sent his bill to day his wife said after supper

"Ah did he let me see it"

Hannah brought it and Charles took it He was astonished at its length and when he came to look at the bottom of the column his face turned a shade pale It footed up just sixty five dollars—an average of five dollars a week

"This is impossible!" he exclaimed as he gazed upon it But he examined the different articles, and he could remember when he ordered them Those things which cost him only a dollar looked very innocent when viewed alone but in the aggregate they had a very different look

"How much shall we lay up this quarter Charles?" kindly asked his wife, as she came and leaned over his shoulder, and smoothed the hair from his brow

"How much shall we lay up?" he repeated "Not much Get the slate and let us reckon up" He was resolved to be frank about the matter and let his wife know all

The slate was brought First she put down one hundred and fifty six dollars as the quarter's salary Then came the rent and the butcher and the baker

"Now put down thirteen dollars for the chain—and twelve dollars for sundries—that means cigars concerts and such things Now take all that from my quarter's salary and see how much remains"

She did so, and gave fifty two dollars as the result

"Fifty two dollars!" uttered Charles sitting back in his chair, "and we have not bought one article of clothing nor of furniture, Fifty two dollars with which to pay sixty five There is thirteen dollars short this quarter and I meant to save at least thirty dollars"

"Well it's no use to mourn over it" said the wife in a cheerful tone, for she saw that her husband felt badly "Let us commence again There is nothing like trying, you know"

For some moments Charles remained silent He gazed first upon the bill he held in his hand, and then upon the floor At last he spoke

"Hannah, I see where the trouble is and I must freely admit that I have been wrong If I had paid for everything as I bought it I should have hit it all now I have not estimated the value of money as I ought Let me once get up again to where I began I will do differently I must step down to the store this evening and pay the rest as soon as I get it"

"That matter is easily settled" she replied "for I have money by me that I had when we were married"

He protested most earnestly against taking his wife's money but she insisted on giving him the money It was her will and he must submit So he went down and paid the grocery bill and on his way home he sold his gold chain for $[illegible] He felt happier now and was ready to commence the next quarter

On the next Monday morning the young man went into the meat store to get a piece of beef for dinner

"How much will you have?" asked the butcher

"O three or four —"

Charles got thus far and then he stopped He had always been in the habit of ordering an indefinite quantity, and leaving the butcher to cut it off at the highest figure and charge the highest price and then he remembered how much was usually wasted

"Let me have two pounds" he said He stopped and saw it weighed, and then paid for it

When he went home at noon he found that his two pounds of beef were enough for a good dinner The next morning he went to the store Mr Waldron had some nice figs just one in which he showed They were only twenty five cents a pound For a moment Charles hesitated but as he remembered that he had got to pay for all he bought he concluded not to take them He found that things were [illegible] when it required the cash to get them [illegible] when the payment could be postponed He paid for all he [illegible] and went his way and thus things went on through the week When [illegible] Saturday night he knew that all the money in his pocket was his own after [illegible] rent That evening he went over [illegible] with Wilkins and [illegible] through the week [illegible] saving [illegible] per cent [illegible] opportunities offered he made the same [illegible] in other matters

At the end of that quarter Charles Matthews did not have to get a slate [illegible] rent and then he found that he had thirty [illegible] dollars left in his pocket [illegible]

"Ah Hannah" said he as he held the money in his hand [illegible] "I see how easy it is for a man to be wrong [illegible]"

THE DEATH OF BAKER

[The following lines—which have never before been published—was written, says an exchange, by Dr Alfred Baker soon after the death of his brother Gen E D Baker who fell in the bloody conflict at Ball's Bluff They were inscribed to Senator J A McDougal an old friend and comrade of the deceased General's, and having been found among his papers, have been sent for publication]

'Twas a calm October morning,
Long before the East was gray
When our chief received the order
Straight to marshal his array
Promptly was each order given
And ere the dawn was bright
His beloved and own battalion
Proudly marched to find the fight

As he started I addressed him
Brother brother heed to day
Yours is but a General's duty
Do not seek the thickest fray
Think how much your country needs you
And your life is not your own
Mix not in the hottest battle
Do not venture forth alone

Said he If the day goes with us
If I deem the field our own
I'll but do a General's duty
Wistar leads the column on
But if overborne by numbers
We are like to lose the day
If my own battalion falters
In the fury of the fray,

"Should I lose my valiant right arm—
If by rebel steel or ball,
Mid the smoke and shock of battle,
Gallant Wistar chance to fall—
Then shall those who hear the story,
In Senate hall or Sunset State,
Know I held a General's duty
Is to dare a soldier's fate"

Vaulting lightly on his charger
With a smile serene and bright
Thus my gallant gifted brother
Rode to that unequal fight
Prompt and free his life to offer
For the cause he loved so well
O her pens must trace the story
How he fought and how he fell

JUST CHARGE IT

"Charles, what did this peach preserve cost?"

"I'm sure I don't know, Hannah"

"But you bought it this morning"

"I know I did, but I didn't ask the price of it"

"Did you pay for it?"

"No"

"Why not?"

"O, because I couldn't make change I have opened an account with Mr Waldron and shall hereafter settle once in three months"

This conversation was carried on at the tea table between Charles Matthews and his wife Matthews was a young mechanic who had just commenced housekeeping and as he was making excellent wages he could afford to live pretty well After he had made known his determined arrangement to his wife she remained some time in silent thought

Charles' she at length said in a mild persuasive tone 'I think it would be better to pay for things as you take them You know you get your pay for work every Saturday night and you could pay as you go very easily'

"I know I could," replied Mr Matthews with the air of a man who had unanswerable arguments at his command, 'but then it would not be near so handy. You see, I shall save all the trouble of making change, and shall not only save time, but also avoid making mistakes'

'Mistakes?' repeated Hannah "How can mistakes occur when you pay for things as you get them?"

"I will tell you Sometimes it may not be convenient to pay for a thing when I get it—I may forget my money, or I may only take it on trial—then if I pay for a part and not for all, some things may get charged which I pay for. No, Hannah, a settlement once a quarter will be the best and most convenient all round, I am satisfied of it."

"Well, perhaps it may," said the wife, with an earnest tone and look, and yet with a smile, but I cannot think as you do."

"But why not?"

"Why, on all accounts In the first place, you will buy more than if you paid cash. Now you needn't shake your head, for I know it. There are many little luxuries, little extras, which we do not need, but which you will be apt to buy if you do not have to pay the money down. I know something of this credit system, and I know it is not a fair or good thing In the second place, if you pay cash for everything you will get your goods cheaper A trader will sell cheaper when he can have the money in his hands than when he has to carry out the amount on his ledger"

"But let me tell you, Hannah, that Mr. Waldron will not cheat He is not the man to take advantage in that way'

"You misunderstand me Charles do you not know that all traders can afford to sell cheaper when they have the money in their hands and do not have to carry the amount to their ledgers They could afford to do so Traders like to secure such customers I think you will find it for your advantage to try the cash system Now I do not believe you would have bought this peach preserve if you had to pay cash for it"

"But I bought that to please you and thought you would be pleased

"I know you did" she replied, as she placed her hand affectionately upon his shoulder "I know you would do anything to please me but for the sake of helping you, I would forego all such things Then after a few years perhaps we might own a little cottage of our own'

For several days Charles only sent up from the store what was really needed. At length, as he went to the store one morning on his way to his work he saw some splendid pickles in fancy jars. He had ordered the articles he needed, and was about to leave when Mr. Waldron spoke.

"Mr Matthews," said he "don't you want a jar of pickles? I carried my wife in a jar last evening, and she thinks them superior to any she ever saw.

Now Charles knew that his wife had plenty of plain pickled cucumbers, some that her mother had put down for her, but Mr Waldron's wife had some of these fancy ones and why shouldn't Hannah?

And so he ordered the jar and as it was inconvenient to pay for it, ordered it charged

"Mr. Matthews, anything you may want you can order at any time, and you may rest assured that we shall be very happy to accommodate you.'

Now this was flattering to young Matthews feelings to think that the trader had such confidence in him and he went away with an exceeding good opinion of himself and of his credit and of the storekeeper in particular

Only a dollar! Yes—only a dollar on the trader's ledger—that is of no account But a dollar right out of one's pocket—that was different Charles would not have bought them had he been obliged to pay the cash at the time

Ah Matthews, look here I have something new to show you This was said by the trader to the young man the very next morning after the purchase of the pickles And so Mr Waldron led our hero to the back store and opened a box

[illegible] Matthews ain't they charming?"

"They are nice," replied Charles And so they were.

I knew your wife would like some of these I carried some home to my wife and she wanted me to save her three or four dozen

[illegible] How high are they?

"Let me see I can send you up three dozen for a dollar I got these very cheap You know they are retailing at five cents apiece'

Yes Well you may send me up three dozen Just charge it if you please

Certainly Anything else this morning

I believe not

And so Matthews went on This morning it would be a dollar—to morrow perhaps fifty cents and then again perhaps only twenty cents It didn't seem much The young man had just as much money in his pocket as though he hadn't bought them Only a dollar he would say to himself That isn't much out of twelve dollars a week And it might not be but the trouble was that the next dollar was called one dollar and he would forget to add it to the former dollar and call it two dollars and with the next dollar and call it three dollars and so on

One evening Charles came home with a new gold chain attached to his watch

Where did you get that" asked his wife

[illegible] returned the husband with an [illegible] toss of the head I made a bargain [illegible] Now guess how much I paid

[illegible]

[illegible] a bargain

Why what are you thinking of? Jack Cummins bought this chain two months ago and paid twenty dollars for it Why just heft it and see how heavy it is Eighteen carats fine Jack was hard up for money and let me have it for thirteen dollars

"It is cheap to be sure,' returned Hannah but yet with no such pleasurable surprise as her husband had expected But,' she added, 'you did not need it and I fear you will feel the loss of the money

"Pooh I have money enough You know I have spent but very little lately I have been pretty saving

But you forget our things, Charles The money which you have on hand is not yours

Not mine? he exclaimed

No it belongs to the storekeeper and to the butcher and to our landlord You know they must be paid'

Don't you fret about them I know it don't cost anywhere near twelve dollars a week to live for I have made an estimate There is Wilkins who works beside me at the shop he has four children, and only gets the same wages I do and yet he lays up two or three dollars each week'

Yes said Hannah I know he does, I was in to see his wife the other day and she was telling me how they get along Mr Wilkins takes his basket twice a week and gets his meat and vegetables, and trades for cash and so gets everything to the very best advantage So he does at the store He lays in a good quantity of those articles which will keep and buys butter eggs apples and such things by the quantity when the market is full, and they are cheap, and he always buys enough to last his family over the season of scarcity, when such things are high His butter for instance, he bought for 22 cents per pound a firkin of it—and it is much sweeter than that for which you paid 48 cents yesterday'

"Forty eight cents!" repeated the young man in surprise

Yes I asked Mr Waldron's man when he brought it up, and he said it had risen to 48 cents Mr Wilkins got 20 dozen of eggs some time ago for 20 cents a dozen, and his wife packed them down, and they keep well You will have to pay Mr Waldron 45 cents for those he sent up yesterday."

Charles Matthews was somewhat astonished at this view of the case, but it could not be helped now and the subject was dropped His gold chain has lost its charm It did not look so well, even in his own eyes as the old black cord which he had worn before

At length the end of the quarter came around The first bill was the rent which amounted to thirty-one dollars The next was the butcher's bill of thirty six dollars Charles was astonished to see how his meat bill footed up But when he saw how many steaks he had had at thirty cents a pound the cause of the wonder disappeared Next he paid the baker's bill which was thirteen dollars When he came home in the evening he had paid all the bills except the grocery bill

"Mr Waldron sent his bill to day" his wife said, after supper

Ah, did he, let me see it'

Hannah brought it and Charles looked. He was astonished, at its length and when he came to look at the bottom of the column his face turned a shade pale It footed up just sixty five dollars—an average of five dollars a week

"This is impossible!" he exclaimed as he gazed upon it But he examined the different articles, and he could remember when he ordered them, Those things which cost him only a dollar, looked very innocent when viewed alone but in the aggregate they had a very different look

"How much shall we lay up this quarter Charles?" kindly asked his wife, as she came and leaned over his shoulder, and smoothed the hair from his brow

"How much shall we lay up?" he repeated "Not much Get the slate and let us reckon up" He was resolved to be frank about the matter and let his wife know all.

The slate was brought. First, she put down one hundred and fifty-six dollars as the quarter's salary Then came the rent and the butcher and the baker.

Now put down thirteen dollars for the chain—and twelve dollars for sundries,—that means cigars, concerts and such things Now take all that from my quarter's salary, and see how much remains"

She did so, and gave fifty-two dollars as the result

"Fifty-two dollars!" uttered Charles, sitting back in his chair, "and we have not bought one article of clothing nor of furniture 'Fifty-two dollars with which to pay sixty-five There is thirteen dollars short this quarter and I meant to save at least thirty dollars"

"Well, it's no use to mourn over it' said the wife in a cheerful tone, for she saw that her husband felt badly "Let us commence again There is nothing like trying, you know"

For some moments Charles remained silent He gazed first upon the bill he held in his hand, and then upon the floor At last he spoke

Hannah, I see where the trouble is and I must freely admit that I have been wrong. If I had paid for everything as I bought it I should have hit it all now I have not estimated the value of money as I ought Let me once get up again to where I began I will do differently I must step down to the store this evening and pay the rest as soon as I get it"

That matter is easily settled ' she replied for I have money by me that I had when we were married

He protested most earnestly against taking his wife's money but she insisted on giving him the money It was her will, and he must submit So he went down and paid the grocery bill, and on his way home he sold his gold chain for $13 He felt happier now, and was ready to commence the next quarter

On the next Monday morning the young man went into the meat store to get him a piece of beef for dinner

'How much will you have?' asked the butcher

O three or four '—

Charles got thus far, and then he stopped He had always been in the habit of ordering an indefinite quantity and leaving the butcher to cut it off at the highest figure and charge the highest price and then he remembered how much was usually wasted

Let me have two pounds," he said He stopped and saw it weighed, and then paid for it

When he went home at noon he found that his two pounds of beef were enough for a good dinner The next morning he went to the store Mr Waldron had some nice figs just come in which he showed They were only twenty five cents a pound For a moment Charles hesitated but as he remembered that he had got to pay for all he bought he concluded not to take them He found that things were not so enticing when it required the cash to get them as when the payment could be postponed He paid for what he bought and went his way and thus things went on through the week When it came Saturday night he knew that all the money in his pocket was his own after deducting the rent That evening he went over to the market with Wilkins and bought as much vegetables and meat as he thought would last through the week He found he had made a saving of at least 20 per cent and when the opportunity offered he made the same saving in other matters

At the end of that quarter Chas Matthews did not have to get a slate He paid his house rent, and then he found that he had thirty five dollars left in his pocket That was his—he didn't owe a penny of it

Ah Hannah' said he as he held the money in his hand and looked it over now I see how easy it is for a man to be wrong and his wife right This money all comes of paying as I go along It is very easy and simple to say just charge it and a man can easily buy things under such circumstances but when the day of reckoning comes those three simple words that we thought so innocent when spoken are found to be costly things I did not believe it until I tried it I would not believe that a man would buy many articles simply because he could have them charged. But I see it now and if I refused to follow your advice at first I have gained experience enough to be able to follow it more cheerfully now

Charles Matthews never again allowed himself to be led away by the credit system, but has followed the cash rule and the consequence has been that he could buy produce, and etc at the cheap prices and he has now cut off the expense of house rent for he owns a snug little cottage and it is all paid for

Needless Suffering

Many persons of weakly constitution with dyspeptic and bilious tendencies suffer life long bodily distress unnecessarily Their existences are commonly shorter than those of their robust neighbors but while they last it is usually the case that they are miserable. If they themselves sufferers doubt [illegible] purpose Could they be induced to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for a while strength regular digestion restored, and the disappearance of biliousness symptoms would speedily acquaint them with the difference between a remedy which deals with causes and those which affect symptoms merely Not only are the Bitters a searching specific for complaints affecting the stomach liver or intestines but they are in consequence of their invigorative and bracing influence upon the entire physique an admirable means of protecting the system against the atmospheric influences which beget malarial disease
